

Ask me about the NASA
Capacity Building Program

What's a normal day
as a NASA intern?

A normal day in the life of a virtual NASA intern involves attending meetings, listening in on phone calls between departments, communicating with intern and team leadership, and being able to adapt to anything thrown your way 😊.

Ask me about the NASA
Capacity Building Program

How did you get interested in the program?

I was inspired to get involved with NASA and the Capacity Building Program after conversing with those who work with the program. At first, I was unsure what CBP was, but came to realize the amazing trainings CBP has to engage partners and other target audiences.

Ask me about the NASA
Capacity Building Program

What's your favorite part of the job so far?

I believe that my favorite part of the job includes working with my fellow interns on the various projects we are working on. Additionally, it is truly amazing to be able to connect and speak to NASA professionals who one day, I might work alongside.

Ask me about the NASA
Capacity Building Program

Are there any unique experiences you've gotten to have because of it?

Indeed, I was able to attend a few NASA academies during my last two years of High School. Additionally, I was able to intern for one of the programs last year which enabled me to work for the Capacity Building Program this year!

Ask me about the NASA
Capacity Building Program

Where do you go from here?

It is my hope that upon graduation, I will be apart of NASA's Office of Strategic Communication

AARIANA MAYNARD

NASA CAPACITY BUILDING
PROGRAM - COMMUNICATIONS LEAD